

The Power of Team Process Mapping

Efficient and effective processes help achieve better results and enable teams to perform at higher levels. As part of our Continuous Improvement projects, we lead cross-functional client teams through intensive, productive, and engaging process mapping workshops to map their current business processes and identify key issues and opportunities. We then mobilize the knowledge, experience and creativity of team members to design a faster, better all-around process that helps achieve their goals.

The benefits of team-based process mapping include bringing together a cross-functional team to objectively discuss what is working and not working, gaining a collective understanding of the full process, problem solving together, and creating insights that bring about improvement.

We begin with 5 guidelines and on page 2 provide a set of steps about how to use this tool in your organization.
